

artScope new england's culture magazine

july/august 2007

Jane Deering Galleries
Chet Williamson
Gloucester
Studio 412A
450 Harrison Ave
Boston

Her home is her gallery. In the months of July through September, Jane Deering turns her summer home in the little Gloucester village of Annisquam into a showcase for the work of British, Irish and German contemporary artists, especially those living and working on Cape Ann.

“I want people to see that they can have a diversity of art within their home,” Deering says. “It’s an alternative to a gallery space that doesn’t have anyone living in it. This really is a home environment. So it shows how one’s personal things work with art.”

The exhibitions, held July through September, include paintings, works on paper, photography, sculpture and select furniture designs; viewings are by appointment only at 978-281-8051.

Read the entire article in our magazine pages...